Track Days and Driving Experiences

The purpose of track days varies depending on where you go and what you are going for. Some people book track days to arrive with their own cars or motorbikes to enjoy the performance and to hone their skills in a controlled environment and away from the dangers that lurk on public roads and highways.

Undeniably track days also provide you with the opportunities to do things beyond the prying eyes of the law. This is not what the Formula Racing Car driving experience in Thailand is about though. This is first and foremost a racing school where, under the supervision of your own professional instructor, you enhance your skills, driving technique and control of the machine over two intense days.

But the underlying theme is still the same and that is that track days are fun! They are about enjoying yourself in a controlled and safe environment. For Special Events such as Corporate Entertainment the course structure can be adapted to 1 day. Your group still attends a comprehensive briefing and everyone gets to drive. Group sizes are limited to 8 people and the onus is squarely on “entertainment” as a single day simply does not offer sufficient time at the racing school to properly teach you and your group how to become a race car driver.

How to become a Race Car Driver

Upon completion of this 2-day Professional Driving Experience you will have learnt a great deal and enhanced your driving technique considerably. While talent spotters probably wont be clamoring at your door yet to sign you up as the next Michael Schumacher, Nigel Mansell or Jenson Button, if you live in Asia or are a frequent traveler to Southeast Asia you will be able to race per say with the Racing School.

You will learn about racing lines, the nuances of cornering which are the crux of any race, when to ease off the peddle and when to step-on-it and the optimum gears you should be in, in each instance. After the course you will be allowed to become a race car driver in the racing schools cars attending track days in Thailand and Southeast Asia. Pro Race Car Drivers usually start with go cart racing when they knee height to a grass hopper and have already been spotted at puberty.

There is no shame in attending this professional driving course to learn how to become an amateur race car driver which opens doors to the incredibly exciting recreational activity of track days and formula racing cars in Southeast Asia.

Thailand Track Days

With its tropical climate Thailand Track Days are accessible all-year-round. While Thailand does not currently have a Formula 1 Track, the private track where our Formula Driving Experience is challenging no matter what your racing experience and it does test the abilities of even the most proficient drivers.

Not only are Thailand track days significantly cheaper than their American and European counterparts, they are also far more laid back, more often that not provide you and your group with exclusive track time and generally being in very close proximity to Bangkok the evenings are far from being an anti climax.

Thailand's race tracks may lack some of the finesse found in the west but safety standards are still adhered to and your time is not rushed. You are essentially here to enjoy yourself and enjoy yourself during your Thailand track days you certainly will!

Accommodation

You have a choice of hotel location when you sign-up for the 2-day Formula Driving Experience with ZiZ Inspire. Either you can commute to the Racing School and Track from Bangkok so that you benefit from all that Bangkok offers in the evenings or you can go to completely the other extreme and opt for a riverside hotel and resort which is significantly closer to the track, has very good facilities and is culturally sensitive.

Its your call entirely and whether you ultimately choose to commute from Bangkok over the 2 days or stay at the riverside resort, you have ZiZ Inspires full support and service offerings at your disposal from transfers and catering to anything else that we can help with.

Location

The Car Racing School is located approximately 60Km west of Bangkok near the town of Nakorn Pathom and on the route out towards Kanchanaburi. The Racing School is located within 10 minutes drive of the track which is booked exclusively for your 2-Day Formula Driving Experience, meaning no-one beyond you or your group will have use of the track during your driving course.

This is rural Thailand, the surrounding area occupied by fruit orchards and rice fields. There is a local Thai restaurant serving local and very authentic Thai food near by and to overcome the language barrier our driver and guide will interpret your order for you.

There is no permanent catering on the race track but if you would like to arrange pack lunches and / or end of driving course parties and barbeques we can organize this to a very high standard and with a menu of your choice.

Given the tracks rural location some clients prefer to commute to and from Bangkok over the 2-days whilst others prefer to stay more locally. Either way we can arrange it and if local is your preference the accommodation is riverside, to a very high standard and bristling with facilities both recreational and business.

Itinerary

These are suggested itineraries only and can be customized to your needs:

2-Day Formula Racing Car Driving Experience Bangkok Commuting from Bangkok

Day 1:

You and your party are collected from your hotel in central Bangkok at 08.30 and driven to racing school that is approximately 60km from Bangkok, a journey which should take about an hour depending on traffic.

After meeting your instructors you attend a 2-hour racing school briefing from 10am to noon during which you will be introduced to the car and discuss the techniques that professional racing car drivers use to get maximum performance from their cars. Techniques will include heel & toe gear changes, racing lines and much, much more.

At around midday you break for lunch and we recommend using your car and driver to go to a local riverside Thai restaurant, not frequented by tourists, to experience real Thai food in a very scenic location. There will be a language barrier and your driver and guide will act as interpreter to ensure that your order is correct. Alternatively we can provide you with a pack lunch from Bangkok which you can eat at the racing school.

The afternoon is spent in the seat fitting in the factory to ensure that when you hit the cockpit of your racing car the following day your seating position is comfortable and perfect. There will be plenty of time for further Q&A during the afternoon and to get fully prepared for your driving experience the following day.

Day 1 will wrap-up at about 4pm which will bring you back into Bangkok just before the evening rush and road mayhem begins. You have the whole evening to enjoy yourself in Bangkok and ZiZ Inspire can certainly make recommendations for restaurants and evening entertainment.

Don't burn the midnight oil too much though, Day 2 is intense!

Day 2:

Our driver collects you from your hotel in Bangkok at 8am and it's a brisk journey straight to the race track for your full days driving experience which begins at 9.30am.

The whole day is spent putting what you learnt the day before into practice. It's just you, your formula racing car and your instructor. Practice your gear shifts, heel & toe gear changing and hone your racing lines. Learn the skilled art of cornering, the key to any race; when to brake, when to step on the gas.

All this is done during stop-and-go lapping sessions where you complete laps of the circuit under the watchful eye of your instructor. During the stops your instructor points out your mistakes and where improvements in your driving technique can be made. You then blast off by yourself to put it into action. This is by far the quickest method to learn; you listen, go and do . . . accelerated learning in motion.

Your Formula Track Day concludes at 5pm. Trackside catering can be provided upon request to include a small wrap-up pit party at the end of the track day. Permanent catering facilities are not offered at the track so arrangements for lunch on your track day have to be made in advance; either at a local restaurant or a pack lunch or part and parcel of any track side catering that you request.
